Fed Chair in his latest speech stressed that the process of “disinflation” has begun, and he expects significant moderation in inflation this year. However, services inflation remains stubbornly high. He reiterated the need for further rate hikes and said that the Fed action will be contingent on incoming data. Separately, real wage growth in Japan edged up for the first time in 9-months by 0.1% in Dec’22. However, household spending declined more than expected by 1.3% in Dec’22 (est. -0.2%), signalling weak domestic demand. In India, markets await the RBI policy decision today. We expect a 25bps rate hike.

- Except Nikkei (flat) and Indian markets (lower), global indices closed higher. Risk-on sentiments increased as Fed Chair’s speech highlighted that disinflation has begun. S&P 500 and Dow rose the most by 1.3% and 0.8% respectively. Asian shares got support from technology stocks and news reports of falling odds of US recession. Sensex fell by 0.4% dragged down by metal and auto stocks. However, it is trading higher today, while Asian stocks are trading mixed.

- Global 10Y yields closed mixed. Fed Chair’s speech despite highlighting disinflation, remained cautious on tighter labour market conditions. Even Minneapolis Fed President spoke of the possibility to raise interest rate to 5.4%. These mixed signals impacted bond market sentiments. UK 10Y yield rose the most (+7bps), followed by Germany (+5bps) and US (+3bps). India's 10Y yield fell by 1bps (7.31%), ahead of RBI policy, where a 25bps rate hike is expected.
