Following comments from the Fed Chair, several Fed officials expressed the need for higher rates. While New York Fed President suggested that a range of 5%-5.25%, Minneapolis Fed President pegged the terminal Fed fund rate at above 5.4%. Fed Governors Lisa Cook and Christopher Waller also noted that more rate hikes will be needed to keep inflation in check. Similar comments were also echoed by two key ECB members, signalling more rate hikes may be forthcoming. In India, RBI delivered a 25bps rate hike as expected, but kept the stance unchanged, keeping room open for more rate hike based on the evolving inflation picture.

- Except UK and India (higher), stock indices elsewhere closed lower. Markets are looking for direction on trajectory of Fed fund rate. Another Fed official (New York Fed President) spoke of a policy rate between 5-5.25% and his comments remained broadly hawkish. S&P 500 fell the most, followed by Dow. FTSE, on the other hand, rose by 0.3% as fears of recession have eased in UK. Sensex rose by 0.6%, supported by gains in technology and metal stocks. However, it is trading lower today, while Asian stocks are trading mixed.

- Global currencies ended mixed against the dollar. DXY ended flat as investors assessed Fed's future rate path after hawkish comments from several Fed officials. EUR depreciated by 0.1% even as two key ECB members stressed on the need for more rate hikes. On the other hand, INR appreciated by 0.3% supported by gains in domestic equities. However, it is trading weaker today, in line with other Asian currencies.
