Peak demand met fully: India's peak power demand grew 3.6% YoY to 213.6GW for December, with no supply shortfall during the month. Total generation for the month was flattish YoY at 116BU. Thermal generation continues to contribute the bulk of India's power supply, at 91% for December and 86% for FY24 YTD. This compares with 89.1% in Dec'22 and 83.3% for Apr-Dec'22. Thermal PLF for the country stood at 65.2% and 68.1% for December and FY24 YTD respectively, remaining above the government's targets of 63.4% and 66.4% respectively.

Pace of renewable additions picking up: A total of 1,000MW of solar and 200MW of wind capacity was added during December, taking the country's cumulative installed capacity to 73.3GW and 44.7GW respectively. ICRA expects India to add 20GW of renewable energy (RE) capacity during FY24, of which 8.7GW has been added so far. On the thermal side, 2.8GW has been added during the current fiscal.

Transmission infrastructure lags, TBCB projects booming: Transmission line capacity totalling 1,203ckm was added in December, taking FY24 YTD capacity addition to 9,047ckm – short of CEA's target by ~35%. On the tariff-based competitive bidding (TBCB) front, PWGR has commissioned phase-II of its Ramgarh-II transmission project associated with evacuation of power from Rajasthan SEZ. Over November and December, PWGR began construction on six new projects won under the TBCB route, and TPWR started work on its first TBCB transmission project.

Outstanding dues continue to fall: Outstanding dues payable to public sector units stood at Rs 183bn as of Nov'23, falling 5.1% MoM and 11% YoY. This decline in dues on a YoY basis indicates successful implementation of the late payment surcharge (LPS) scheme, which has ensured timely payment by various state utilities.

Power exchanges capturing short-term market: IEX accounted for ~60% of short-term transactions during December, while the overall market contracted 12% YoY. The average market clearing price declined 16% YoY to Rs 4.69/kWh in the month of December.
